The new trawler Dartmouth, which went into commission Thursday, returned to the Fish Pier yesterday afternoon, and reported some slight mechanical trouble which forced her to cut short her maiden trip. Captain Iver Carlson stated that the winch on the vessel refused to function, and he returned from the Channel fishing grounds with 10,000 pounds of mixed fish. The new steamer was built at Fore River. She is 144 tons register, and her new rigging and gear make her stand out among the other weather-beaten boats at the pier. She carries a crew of 14 men, and after the minor repairs are made they will put to sea again this week.

SMELT FISHERMEN ARE having their innings down Parker river way. With their little canvas shelters, a group of these fellows fishing through the ice, were an attraction to passing autoists in that section yesterday.

RUSH AID TO MAN INJURED AT SEA

Answering a wireless appeal for assistance, three patrol boats and one destroyer of the Eastern division of the United States Coast Guard were dispatched yesterday morning to render aid to an injured man aboard the steam trawler Mariner, more than 200 miles at sea. The first brief message did not give the identity of the man or the nature of the accident, but implied that it was of serious nature and stated that immediate medical attention was necessary.

The Mariner, owned by the Massachusetts Trawling Company of this city, has been fishing on Georges Bank and as she is not equipped with radio quarters immediately responded to order to the Coast Guard boats on patrol to render all possible assistance. The Brant reported that she was standing by the Mariner and would continue to broadcast their position to assist the Coast Guard in making a quick contact.
